Biography He was born in Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico, where he was raised by his grandmother and sang in the Puertorriqueño dialect. His formal education ended at the age of 11, when he began work on the railroad. In the early 1970s, he worked on a barge, and then moved to New York City in 1975. While working as a shipyard co-ordinator, he became a member of the Steel Pan Orchestra at the Casa de Zuni, a restaurant in Manhattan. In 1977, Papa Nino formed his own band, Papa Nino y La Nueva Jiquí (Nino with the New Jiquí), with which he recorded the album El Domingo Espectacular (1978) and the single "Tanto Tequila" (1979). The cover of his album El Domingo Espectacular featured him playing the steel pan with the group, a first for an Afro-Puerto Rican. After this he played the steel drum in the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater at the New York Palace Theater and, later, at the American Jazz Dance Theater in New York. After the end of the Ailey Dance Company, he became soloist with New York City Ballet, where he played with her for four years as part of the regular company and the Ballerina Girls of New York. At the time, he was the only Afro-Puerto Rican musician in the United States recognized as a steelpan player. His 1993 album Papa Nino de la Huella, a tribute to steelpan music and culture, was released on the label Tafaba Records. In the 2000s (decade), his appearance in the movie Moulin Rouge! was heralded as a major step in popularizing Afro-Puerto Rican culture in the United States.
